NATIONAL LAW REVIEW

Employee Experience Focused Workplace

The workplace is experiencing a major shift and entering a new chapter. Employers are increasingly putting their employees at the forefront, instead of solely focusing on output and numbers, leading to increased productivity and high morale.

Join Ballard Spahr Labor and Employment attorneys as we discuss what the employee experience is, why employers should care about it, and how companies are already addressing this with the millennial generation entering the workforce. We will go over the potential legal risks involved with implementing new experiences as well as the rewarding benefits for doing so.
