CFPB Extends Comment Period for HMDA ANPR

---

Thursday, July 11, 2019

As previously reported, in May the CFPB issued both a proposal to modify the Home Mortgage Disclosure Act (HMDA) rule and an advance notice of proposed rulemaking seeking comment on three specific aspects of the HMDA rule:

- The new data points added by the CFPB based on discretionary authority.
- The free-form text fields that apply to certain data points.
- The application of the rule to business or commercial-purpose loans made to a non-natural person and secured by a multi-family dwelling.

Originally the CFPB provided for a 60-day comment period that would have ended July 8. The CFPB has now extended the comment period until October 15.
